Profile

Katie has been practicing outpatient orthopedics at Illinois Bone and Joint Institute since graduating from Marquette University in 2013. She grew up in the Northwest suburbs of Chicago, and she returned to the area to work after finishing school.

Katie enjoys working with a wide variety of patients with different diagnoses, especially sports-related injuries, and she values being able to collaborate with other therapists and healthcare professionals to provide the optimal care for her patients. Katie obtained her Certification in Orthopedic Manual Therapy through the Ola Grimsby Institute in 2016, and she finds it is valuable to incorporate these treatment techniques for her patients.

Katie enjoys traveling, running, and exploring the city with her friends, family, and dog, Hoosier.
